

The former judo room on the UCT campus in Orange Street has been converted into an attractive exhibition gallery where works of students and staff of the Michaelis Art school will be shown. The inaugural exhibition was opened on Tuesday night by Professor John Reid, deputy principal of the university. Above is the poster of that exhibition and crowded around Professor Neville Dubow, (with the bicycle) are some familiar Michaelis personalities toggled out in historical dress.